Position paper to conflict minerals

ROETELMANN GMBH is manufacturer of products, which do not contain conflict minerals such as tin, tantalum, tungsten and gold. We only use components from well-known manufacturers and distributors in our products, with whom we have long-term and cooperative relationships. We, as a manufacturer of end devices, have no direct influence to the origin of minerals used by our suppliers. We cannot give any basic guarantee in this regard. Of course we are committed to ensuring traceability and transparency for our suppliers products. Many manufacturers provide information on the material properties and origin on their websites.
